"Well, then, take his wind. A runner always has good lungs, but I'll bet if you snapped him on the chest with a rubber band he'd cough himself to death."

"Mebbe he ain't in good shape yet." Fresno sneered. "No, and he'll never get into good condition with those girls hanging around him all the time. Don't you know that the worst thing in the world for an athlete is to talk to a woman?"

"That's the worst thing in the world for anybody," said Willie, with cynicism. "But how can we stop it?"

"Make him eat as well as sleep in his training quarters; don't let him spend any time whatever in female company. Keep your eyes on him night and day."

Willie spoke his mind deliberately. "I'm in favor of that. If this is another Humpy Joe affair I'm a-goin' to put one more notch in my gun-handle, and it looks like a cub bear had chawed it already."

"There ain't but one thing to do," Stover announced, firmly. "We've got to put it up to Mr. Glass and learn the truth."

"You'll find him in the bunk-house," directed Fresno. "I think I'll trail along and hear what he has to say."

On the Warpath.

"Good afternoon, Johnny!" said the young lady visiting his mother's house in the sweet cause of charity. "Why don't you come to our Sunday school? A lot of your little friends have joined, and we are going to have a lovely party."

Johnny shook his head. Then he suddenly exclaimed:

"Has a boy named Johnson, with red hair, joined yet?"

"Yes, dear," said the nice young lady, "and he seems to like it. He's such a good little boy!"

"Huh! Is he?" muttered Johnny. "Well, if he's there I'll come, too. I've been looking for him for three months, and never knew where to find him before."

HUSBAND NAILED RUBBER ON GATES

Wife so Weak and Nervous Could Not Stand Least Noise—How Cured.

Munford, Ala.—"I was so weak and nervous while passing through the Change of Life that I could hardly live. My husband had to nail rubber on all the gates for I could not stand it to have a gate slam."

"I also had backache and a fullness in my stomach. I noticed that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was advertised for such cases and I sent and got a bottle. It did me so much good that I kept on taking it and found it to be all you claim. I recommend your Compound to all women afflicted as I was."—Mrs. F. P. MULLENDORE, Munford, Alabama.

TO REPLACE HORSE

French Military Authorities Plan to Have Their Artillery Drawn by Motor Trucks.

IDEA CONSIDERED GOOD ONE

Experiments Already Made Seem to Demonstrate That It Is Entirely Feasible and Will Give Army Much Better Service.

Horses have been marked down for abolition from the artillery service of the French army. The French, who claim to have the finest artillery in the world, have come to the conclusion that better service can be obtained on the field with motor trucks than with teams of horses.

Higher speed and greater mobility is assured with the use of motor vehicles, the degree of reliability is higher, the number of men per gun is less, and all possibility of a battery being rendered useless by a stampede of horses is avoided.

Experiments have been carried out for a considerable length of time and such satisfactory results have been obtained that it has been decided to make use of motors in place of horses for all the regiments stationed in Africa. For the time being mechanical traction is being used for the heavy 220 millimeter guns, the lighter arms still being served by horses.

Orders have been placed with automobile manufacturers for special types of four-wheel drive tractors and some of these have been put through their paces on the military grounds at Vincennes, to the east of Paris.

The program called for an ability to haul a load of 12 tons over any kind of ground on which horses could operate. The tractors took in tow a line of gun carriages and ammunition wagons, the first carriage bearing the 220 millimeter gun, and was called upon to haul it over every kind of ground on which horses had successfully ventured.

The most severe tests consisted in taking the load up very steep banks of soft earth forming the background to the artillery firing ranges. The earth was either so soft or so muddy that there was very little grip for the wheels, yet all these tests were successfully accomplished.

In the mud-plugging competition the machines had to go through mud reaching to the hub caps.

Another test was the ability to get over the trunk of a big tree which had been laid across the track and pinned in position to prevent it being pushed out of the way by the wheels. This was also done successfully.

Finally, there was an immersion test, the tractor being taken down the muddy river bank under its own power and run into the stream until its wheels were entirely under water, the frame members just being submerged. After remaining in this position for a little while, the machine was brought out under its own power.—From Motor.

SONG OF THE AUTO.

The freedom of roads that go winding along
Like ribbons of silver and gold,
By orchards and meadows and gardens
And woods.

And rivulets crystalline cold;
And a fair panorama of villas and farms
As the milestones away from you reel,
Are only a few of the pleasures that go
With the price of an automobile.

A rose on the cheek, and a song in the heart,
An eye that is steady and clear,
An appetite equal to pickles and pie
Without a gastronomic fear;

A spirit at peace and in tune with the world,
And nerves that are tempered to steel,
Are some of the pleasures of health that
You get
When buying an automobile.

The hunk of the horn has a magical note
That charms all your troubles away,
And the hum of the motor invites you to go

Where the blossoms and birds are at play,
There is somewhere a racy new model of speed
Awaiting my hand on the wheel,
So put on your hat and together we'll go
And purchase an automobile.

—Mina Irving, in Leslie's.

Had One Already.

"I should think you would get you a nice runabout."
"I've got one. She's in this store selecting a hat right now."

NOT MERELY A LUXURY

CITY PEOPLE HAVE NO MONOPOLY OF THE AUTO.

Dwellers in the Country Districts Also Take Part in the Enjoyment Afforded by Machines.

People who live in cities and see the automobiles whizz by are apt to think of the machine as a luxury pure and simple and one not to be indulged in unless there is plenty of spare funds to pay for it. It is all the more confusing then to go to the country and find that there, with nearly all classes and where wealth is less frequent, the automobile is regarded as a money-maker, a cost-reducer, a pillar of profit—in short, a necessity.

Ten years ago the farmer sniffed contemptuously at the very mention of an automobile. Today, in proportion to population, more automobiles are used in the country than in the city. Furthermore, while the motorcar may in most instances remain a luxury to the urban dweller, the people of the rural districts are awakening more and more to the fact that to them it is a convenience that adds a neat sum yearly to the profit side of their ledgers.

It is surprising to learn that even among so-called poor farmers the proportion of automobile owners is increasing at a much more rapid rate than in the cities. Perhaps the investment may be made in a cheap second-hand car, but even then it shows plainly the trend toward the use of this modern invention. As the popularity of the automobile increased lovers and advocates of horses declared: "Well, horses will never be discarded on the farms; the farmers couldn't get along without them." Yet the farmer has learned, vastly quicker than the city man, where he can get a return value out of a machine.

Everywhere can this new condition of affairs be found. It was first noticeable in the west, and then gradually made its way eastward. Figures from the New England states, New York and Pennsylvania reveal the rapidly growing use of the automobile in the country district. The far south has its quota, and even the poorest sections of Virginia are getting well filled with machines. This was shown during a recent trip to Virginia, when the justice of the peace of a small village proudly declared: "You should be in our town toward the end of the week. Then the farmers from miles away come in here with their families in automobiles. I tell you, we're getting to have a heap of cars around these parts."

USED THE MOTOR FOR PUMP

Delivery Wagon Kept a Cellar Dry During Flood in Wilkesbarre, Pennsylvania.

Each spring the retail district of Wilkesbarre, Pa., prepares for the annual flood by removing all goods from cellars to upper floors. Then the merchants sit down and wait patiently for the waters to come and recede. This year a large department store failed to join in the general transfer, but invested in a simple centrifugal pump. The flood came according to schedule. As soon as the water began to ooze into the cellar the store force drove its motor delivery wagon to the front of the store, jacked up one rear wheel and connected it with the pump by a belt. Then they started the motor.

There were a few moments of anxiety before the car showed its ability to pump the water out faster than the flood seeped it in. But doubt vanished before the demonstration had been at work a half hour. The crest of the flood passed, leaving the cellar still dry. And the waters receded without a cent of damage being done. A year ago it had cost the store $800 to transfer the goods and have the cellar pumped out after the flood was over. The members of the firm say that their motor easily paid for itself in the flood service alone.

Helpful When Motoring.

One often wishes to carry a dress hat when taking a long motoring trip. How to do this without a large hat box is often a problem. Make a large square bag out of paper muslin the color of the lining of your auto, into this put your hat, and pin it over your head to the lining of the auto by all four corners. In this way the hat will ride easily, will not crush or catch the dust and is out of the way, besides being out of sight of passers-by.

Women!

If weak, you need Cardui, the woman's tonic. Cardui is made from gentle herbs, acts in a natural manner, and has no bad results, as some of the strong drugs sometimes used. As a medicine—a tonic—for weak, tired, worn-out women, Cardui has been a popular success for over 50 years.

Take CARDUI

The Woman's Tonic

Mrs. Lula Walden, of Gramlin, S. C., followed this advice. Read her letter: "I was so weak, when I first began to take Cardui, that it tired me to walk just a little. Now, I can do all the general housework, for a family of 9." Try Cardui for your troubles. It may be the very remedy you need.

PATRIOTIC MEN OF STETTIN

Example of German Thoroughness is Shown in Way the City is Systematically Boomed.

In the city of Stettin, Germany, is a unique society for the promotion of the export trade. It was founded in 1872, and weekly lectures are given, dealing with subjects of interest to its members. A striking feature is the granting of stipends to capable young men who desire to go abroad for training in foreign countries. An applicant for a stipend must have some knowledge of the English language and of the commercial language of the country to which he intends to go. He must also submit testimonials as to character and ability. The stipend is to be large enough to cover the expenses of the journey and to tide over a reasonable period of time until employment can be found. The maximum sum granted is $360. Should the recipient later find himself in a position to repay the stipend to the association, he is expected to do so. He must give his word of honor that he will justify the confidence placed in him by making the best use of his sojourn abroad in increasing his knowledge and employing it in the promotion of Stettin's trade. He is also obliged to make quarterly reports to the association, in which he relates his experiences abroad, describes trade conditions, gives details as to production and consumption, climate, exports and imports, and especially how Stettin's trade with the country can be promoted.

UNABLE TO SEE THE JOKE

Statesman, Forced to Admit He Could Not Read His Own Writing, Was Annoyed.

Representative William C. Adamson, chairman of the house committee on interstate and foreign commerce, can perhaps claim the record in the house for illegible chirography. He will admit that it is sometimes impossible for him to read his own handwriting after it has grown cold.

One day a client entered his law office at Carrollton, Ga., and handed him a letter.

"Mr. Adamson," he said, "I received that letter in the mail yesterday and am unable to read it. I wish you would translate it for me."

Mr. Adamson took the letter, which was scrawled on a plain sheet of paper, and regarded it for a long time. Then he handed it back with the remark:

"That is not writing. Some lunatic has been trying to play a joke on you."

Straightway the visitor handed Mr. Adamson the printed envelope in which the letter had been mailed.

"This letter evidently came from your office, Mr. Adamson; your name is printed on the envelope," he said, mildly.

But Mr. Adamson's remarks were not mild; in fact, they have been expunged from the record.—Washington Star.
